Dear Members

SUBSCRIPTIONS

UNPAID AND PART PAID

First, thank you to all members who have already paid their 2016 subscription. And to those who may have overlooked it a reminder to do so at their earliest convenience.

There are still some members who have yet to pay both their 2014 and 2015 subscriptions. If you believe you may be among that number and wish to continue with your membership of the Anglo-Danish Society could you please pay the outstanding amounts (£15 per annum for Individual membership and £25 per annum for Family membership) to the address below failing which I will be obliged to remove those persons from the list of members.

As a result of the increase in subscriptions this year (to £25 for Individuals and £40 for Family membership) there is a problem which I ask members to assist with. Over 50% of annual subscriptions for 2016 paid by standing order have been paid at the former subscription rates. If you have not amended or cancelled and replaced your standing order, could you please do so and send a cheque payable to The Anglo-Danish Society to the address below for the shortfall for 2016 (£10 for Individuals and £15 for Family members). If you are setting up a new standing order could you please use your postcode as a reference to ensure I credit your subscription to the correct member.

Pelle Valentin Olsen, A-DS Scholar 2012-13

After finishing my MPhil in Modern Middle Eastern Studies at Oxford in the summer of 2014 I crossed the Atlantic in order to pursue a PhD, in the same field, at the University of Chicago. Funded by a Fulbright Fellowship I arrived in Chicago in September 2014 and was immediately charmed by Chicago's Hyde Park neighbourhood and the mild autumnal weather of the Midwest. The autumnal charm did not last long, however, and winter in Chicago is a different story altogether - even for a native Dane such as me. While I miss the atmosphere and mild winters of Oxford and St. Antony's College, Chicago has become a home away from home, and I have found here a unique intellectual and convivial environment as well as enthusiastic and inspiring colleagues, many of whom I now count as friends.

Last year I presented some of my preliminary findings at conferences in Denver, Austin, and Los Angeles. During the summer of 2015 I was fortunate enough to receive funding from the University of Chicago and I spent two months working in archives across Israel. I'm currently organizing a year-long lecture series on the challenges of studying gender and sexuality in Middle Eastern history. In November 2016 I will present a paper on masculinity and sexuality in interwar Iraq at the annual Middle Eastern Studies Conference in Boston.

I have remained in close contact with St. Antony's College and I'm happy to be returning to London and Oxford this summer, thanks to a generous research fellowship, to do archival research at The British Library, The National Archives, and the Middle East Centre at St. Antony's College. I would like to once again thank the Anglo-Danish Society for always taking an interest in my work and for making my postgraduate work at Oxford possible with a generous scholarship. Without this scholarship I wouldn't be where I am today. The financial support and generous encouragement I received from the Anglo-Danish Society during my time at Oxford convinced me that I have what it takes to make it in academia.

Past Events : Easter Lunch

KFUK did us really proud and provided a traditional Danish lunch with all the much loved dishes associated with feasting at Easter or Christmas – and then some more!

Lene Orchard, former editor of our Newsletter reports on Lone's talk:

In between our delicious courses Lone Hørlyck, one of our Scholarship 2015-2016 Awardees, told us how she had never imagined she would end up as a neuroscientist living in London, for although she had always been interested in research she was so keen on playing the violin that after leaving school she started a preparatory course for the music conservatoire.

However, after a few years she decided that studying at university would be a better path for her, so she embarked on a new course in Molecular Medicine at Aarhus University and after a year she transferred to Psychology since she thought “do I really want to get a job staring into petri dishes for the rest of my career?”

When she went abroad for a semester to study Neuroscience it was at the University of Nottingham where she studied the brain in more depth. She had a wonderful time there and felt really immersed in English culture. A very inspiring Professor Wigmore worked on a brain structure called the Hippocampus which is very involved in memory - new brain cells are created throughout life, but this process can break down during depression or during chemotherapy causing memory problems.

Past Events : Easter Lunch

When returning to Aarhus she decided to write her bachelor thesis on the Hippocampus and as she longed to learn more she went back to the UK for her Master's Degree and applied for a course in Clinical Neuroscience at UCL which is one of the best and biggest places for that discipline in the world employing more than 200 people in Neuroscience alone. For her Master's she did a project studying mouse brains under the microscope. Then it was back to Copenhagen where she did a second Master's programme to qualify as a clinical psychologist in Denmark. At the end of the year when she started applying for PhDs she suddenly discovered there was one at the UCL on how emotions can affect how and what we remember and how this is related to the Hippocampus. She applied, was accepted and hurried back to the UK where she has now spent 3 years.

She enjoys living in London where at first she was lucky to get into one of the Queen Ingrid Scholarship flats and she now lives in a house owned by the Danish Church with the assistants and the organist at the church. Apart from her PhD work Lone has been a teaching assistant at UCL and also written articles for UCL and the Newsletter BioNews.

What are her plans for the future ? After finishing her PhD shortly and then obtaining her qualification as a Danish psychologist she will be looking for new opportunities such as combining a post doctorate research position with clinical work in Denmark. Time will tell what it will all lead to.

Past Events : Museum of the Order of St John

Based in a 16th century gatehouse and former medieval priory in Clerkenwell, the Museum of the Order of St John tells the story of the Order of Knights founded in Jerusalem during the Crusades. We learnt of its colourful past, which involved the great and the good from Shakespeare and Hogarth to Dr Johnson, Dickens and royalty. The buildings, including a Norman crypt and a 16th century church, are beautifully decorated with heraldry, stained glass, gilding and carvings to create glowing interiors with fine furniture and paintings. The museum richly illustrates the current commitment by the St John Ambulance Brigade of providing first aid and care in the community.

More than 20 of us enjoyed the fascinating guided tour of this historical jewel. It was followed by lunch at the nearby pub, The Dovetail, which served some excellent traditional Belgian fare and a wide variety of beers – and wine!

Queen Ingrid's College in London

This spring it is 10 years since we at The Danish YWCA celebrated our latest development: Queen Ingrid's College in London was officially opened with a grand dinner for 75 friends and sponsors in the presence of HRH Princess Benedikte accompanied by her sister Queen Anne-Marie.

At the Danish YWCA our main purpose has always been to be 'an open door' for young Danes staying in or coming through London. This also includes offering short or medium term accommodation.

As a member of the Anglo-Danish Society you will know that during the last 20 years more and more Danes are coming to London to study as part of their university education. Finding somewhere suitable to live and study can be quite a problem and very expensive.

At the hostel in Hampstead most rooms are shared with 2 – 5 others and therefore not ideal for serious students in their mid to late twenties.

During the 1990s the idea of a Danish college took form and was a natural extension to our work at the Danish YWCA.

But the road to realisation proved to be a long one!

The first step was an 'opinion poll', conducted amongst Danish universities, to find out how many of their students went abroad as part of their studies. The survey showed that in

Queen Ingrid's College in London

1998 over 1500 Danes came to the UK for further studies. So a good base for our idea.

Next was funding, of course! A very welcome first donation came from Queen Ingrid and King Frederik's Fund and set us well on the way for the next – and obvious – application: The A.P. Møller Fund. The fund committee showed an interest, and a representative came to London to inspect a property we by then had on our hands. The building was located in NW London – a handy 10 minutes walk from the YWCA in Hampstead and could be converted into 8 bedsits. The fund committee did not like the location. They were of the opinion it was too far out of London. And turned down the application.

Chairman of The Danish YWCA, Karen Maibom, with the keys for flat number 8 which was bought in June 2015 for £ 357.000.

We did, however, persist with the project. We looked for other ways of funding and also did battle with the planners at Camden Council. Many months later all the plans and a lot of hard work fell to the ground. It was quite a blow! But we still had our first fund-money plus other funds had shown interest.

We changed direction and started looking for small flats or studios. It was a fortunate decision! It proved much easier to find one flat instead of a whole house, it is easier to manage – and it met with the approval of The Oak Foundation Fund.

In 2003 the first one-bedroom flat was purchased and by September 2003 occupied by the first scholar.

By 2006 we had four flats and we felt we could call them a 'college' and permission was given by HM Queen Margrethe to name the college in honour of HM Queen Ingrid who for decades was Patron for The Danish YWCA.

The thinking behind the project has been to give Danish students who are enrolled at a London university decent housing at a subsidised rent.

To have accommodation organised before arriving in London saves a lot of time and energy at the beginning of the academic year and the very affordable rent represents a type of grant in the order of £ 5-6.000 for a 12 month period.

This is all possible with the help of donations from Danish funds topped up with proceeds from the hostel.

A year ago the 8th flat was acquired and, like the previous 7, it is within walking distance of the Danish YWCA.
Over the 13 years more than 85
students, with a great variation of subjects, have stayed in our flats.
The applicants for Queen Ingrid's College are chosen by an independent sub-committee in Copenhagen, and we aim to select people with a wide range of subjects. From the list of past beneficiaries a few examples :

- M.Sc. Program in Philosophy, Policy and Social Value : LSE
- MA in Astrophysics : University College
- Phd in Byzantine Art : Courtauld Institute
- M.Sc. In Middle East Politics : London School of Oriental and African Studies
- MSc in Music, Mind & Brain at Dept. of Psychology : Goldsmiths College

SUMMER BAZAAR

SAT. 21. MAY FROM 11AM TO 5PM

The Danish Church and Danish Women's Association once again put on their joint grand summer bazaar in May. Thanks to many willing hands the church and the church hall will be transformed into an exotically Danish bazaar with stands and stalls selling the latest designs or familiar old favorites.

For weeks and months ahead of the bazaar, orders are placed and transportation from Denmark arranged for huge consignments of herring, licorices, cheese and rye bread. More loads with candles, glassware and the latest design 'must haves' from Denmark continue to arrive. All need sorting and pricing whilst the transformation of the premises takes place. Marquees are erected in the gardens, furniture and signs appear from nowhere and there is a lively buzz as preparations reach fever pitch during the weeks leading up to the bazaar.

On the day there is plenty for young and old to gaze at and be tempted by. It is lovely to see several generations of Anglo-Danish families making this an enjoyable day out.

The children's stalls with lucky dips, ice creams and face painting will keep the youngsters happy while others scrutinize the vast array on offer from household names such as Georg Jensen, Trip Trap, Holmegaard, Flora Danica and Flensted Mobiles. The book, embroidery and garden stalls are always popular while some prefer to leave it all to chance and support the raffle hoping for prizes from Copenhagen GetAways, Snaps and Rye, Tivoli, The Opera House or Mash.

If you plan on visiting the bazaar then do swing by the restaurant in the garden to say 'Goddaw' in Jutlandish. I will be selling smørrebrød and frikadeller as usual.

1000TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF ASSANDUN

To remember those slain King Canute let build a tiny church overlooking the Crouch valley in Essex where the Battle took place. It was dedicated in 1020 and rebuilt in C13 and C14. I visited St Andrew's last summer and found not only a model of a Viking ship hanging in the nave, but also the Dannebrog in red and white folds in the chancel. By chance I also found an article about the 1952 restoration in DENMARK, a monthly review of Anglo-Danish Relations which I shall be happy to send our readers (ehlerslisbeth@me.com). The Church is open with a guide from 2 – 5pm every afternoon except Sundays from Easter to the end of September. It is an absolute treasure trove of "matters King Canute".

This year marks the 1000th anniversary of the Battle of Assandun, and the Parish Council in conjunction with Ashingdon Primary Academy have arranged an event for Saturday 25th June 2016. The event will be held at Ashingdon Primary Academy from 12pm – 5pm. There will be a re-enactment at 12.30pm and at 4pm along with a Viking Village which will be available to view throughout the event. There will also be a falconry display, archery and axe throwing as well as a variety of stalls and refreshments.

The Parish Council have arranged for a local historian, Steve Pollington, to hold a historical talk about the Battle on Friday 10th June 2016 at 7.30pm in Ashingdon Memorial Hall.

The Parish Council have commissioned local historian, Ian Yearsley and local artist, Graham Larwood to produce a keepsake booklet to commemorate the Battle. Booklets will be available free of charge at the historical talk and at the event on 25th June 2016.

A company that specialises in Viking history will be visiting Ashingdon Primary Academy and Canewdon Primary School to do a range of activities from making a shield to a weapons display.

The Parish Council have also secured funding for a wooden information board in commemoration of the Battle. This will be installed at St Andrews Minster later in the year.

KJELD JACOBSEN, R

8.12.1937 – 8.3.2016, former chairman of the Danish Club in London and a loyal supporter of the Anglo-Danish Society.

At Kjeld's funeral in the Danish Church on 30 March, Kaj Abrahamsen paid a moving tribute to a good, generous and popular friend who was always interested in the people he met. Kjeld was known for his endearing, teasing smile and attitude. A very hospitable man, he loved parties, games and sport; golf and bridge being his absolute favourites. During a business career spanning 40 years within the same company in Nigeria and the UK, Kjeld was a successful and dedicated Managing Director in Shipping. He was awarded the Order of the Dannebrog as an excellent ambassador for Denmark. Kaj Abrahamsen concluded that Kjeld would be much missed, not only by Aase, but by his many friends all over the World.
